

Module-4

Q-1. What are the main factors that can affect PPC bidding?

[ANSWER]

PPC bidding is influenced by several key factors working together. Your maximum bid and Quality Score — which is based on ad relevance, expected click-through rate, and landing page experience — combine to determine your ad rank in the auction. Competition from other advertisers in your industry can drive up costs significantly, while your chosen bidding strategy (manual or automated) affects how the platform optimizes your bids. Additional adjustments based on device, location, time of day, and audience targeting further fine-tune how much you effectively pay, and seasonal trends or strong conversion history can also shift bidding dynamics over time.

Q-2. How does a search engine calculate actual CPC?

[ANSWER]

PPC bidding is influenced by several key factors working together. Your maximum bid and Quality Score — which is based on ad relevance, expected click-through rate, and landing page experience — combine to determine your ad rank in the auction. Competition from other advertisers in your industry can drive up costs significantly, while your chosen bidding strategy (manual or automated) affects how the platform optimizes your bids. Additional adjustments based on device, location, time of day, and audience targeting further fine-tune how much you effectively pay, and seasonal trends or strong conversion history can also shift bidding dynamics over time.

Q-3. What is a quality score and why it is important for Ads?

[ANSWER]

Quality Score is a rating given by Google (on a scale of 1 to 10) that measures the overall quality and relevance of your ads, keywords, and landing pages. It is calculated based on three main components: expected click-through rate, ad relevance to the search query, and landing page experience. It is important because it directly influences both your ad rank and your actual cost-per-click — a higher Quality Score means your ad can appear in better positions at a lower cost, giving you a competitive advantage even over advertisers with higher bids. Essentially, it rewards advertisers who create relevant, user-friendly campaigns by making their ads cheaper and more visible.
